SCHOOL CHILDREN UNDERFED

Investigations in rural and village schools of eight counties in Ohio disclosed the fact that one-fifth of the pupils of schools visited by inspectors were under-nourished in six large cities one-sixth of the pupils were suffering from malnutrition. It is not claimed that many of the children showed as underfed as the pupils of schools visited by inspectors were under-nourished. But the things they eat are not what is needed for the proper development of their bodies. Few persons are familiar with the values of foods, and the body-building elements are lacking, even though the bulk of the food may be large enough.

Children in many homes are permitted to eat the things that appeal to their appetites, and the result is that they eat the things that are deficient in the elements necessary for a growing body. The blood is impoverished, and the children soon become underweight and unable to resist the attacks of disease as they could do if properly fed. Many schools in the cities and large towns, by sending masses to the dangers of malnutrition, have undertaken to supplement the food of the children by lunches prepared under the direction of capable dietitians, and the results have been found highly satisfactory. This plan is not so readily adopted in the rural and village schools, but it is a plan that should be adopted in all schools. Public health service will fail in its most important function if it does not interest itself in correcting the malnutrition imposed on children by malnutrition. It is a campaign of education that should be impressed strongly upon heads of homes, and until parents are trained to provide the proper food for growing children, the schools should work to overcome the deficiency.

IGNORING AMERICAN LITERATURE

Stclair, Lewis finds fault with New Yorkers (and the criticism applies with equal force to many others) for just skimming through the new books, or getting their knowledge of them from newspaper reviews, instead of reading them conscientiously.

His accusation is based on truth; but there seems to be no remedy for the condition of which he complains. There is not enough leisure on anyone's life to become well acquainted with all the classics, much less the best in current literature. It takes more leisure than many have at their disposal just to read the morning and evening paper thoroughly every day. Conspicuous headlines are provided to permit the reader to discriminate between that which he will read and that which he will omit.

Reviews perform for books the same function that headlines do for newspaper articles; they save the reader from wasting time on a volume that might be better employed on another book.

Another complaint which Mr. Lewis makes, and which is also well founded, is that American readers have been unfairly trained to believe that our native authors are inferior to those of Great Britain. English novelists and essayists and dramatists come to the United States on lecture tours and are lionized. The result is that we neglect the works of American writers, though they are meritorious. The literature of the United States deserves more consideration.

WOMAN AND JURY SERVICE

English women, given the ballot, seem to be learning masculine ways fast, for our English cousins are said to be already dodging jury service! They do not want to serve, and they make more excuses—perhaps better ones, too—than masculinity offers when a summons to become a ventriloquist arrives.

Thus far American womanhood seems not to have developed the dislike of the male sex for this obligation of citizenship. There have been women on juries, as well as all-women juries, and in every instance the work of the feminine members has been highly esteemed by magistrates in a position to observe the operations of the plan.

It is to be hoped that no change will occur in this condition. In no other phase of citizenship duties can womanhood show such thorough devotion to the cause of social betterment as in liability to the call to aid in intelligent jury service, the machinery of the law. Men have proved recalcitrant in this field. Let the newer citizens show themselves as better citizens.

A GOOD SELECTION

The nomination of Harry R. Grier of Tonopah, which was sent to the senate yesterday by the president for confirmation as receiver of public moneys, meets with the hearty approval of Republicans and Democrats of southern Nevada. Mr. Grier received the appointment as a reward for services rendered by him in his party. He has the ability and will make a most efficient of them.

BETTER POSTAL SERVICE

Postmaster General Hays and postmasters from seven of the largest cities of the United States compared notes in Washington and made suggestions for the improvement of the postal service. Mr. Hays assured the postmasters that his department would do all it could to bring about changes for the betterment of the service.

Mr. Hays suggested organization of a "red service" as a super-special delivery guaranteeing special dispatch of all mail from the time it was placed in the postoffice until delivered to its destination. Such delivery would apply to all first class matter, and if it is made operative will be greatly welcomed. The handicap of lack of help, experienced during the war, appears to be disappearing, and the prompt handling of mail matter is more nearly realized than it has been for a number of years. The slackness in industry should have the effect of causing many trained mail workers to return to the postal service.

A new branch of the postoffice department may be organized for the purpose of taking over the delivery system of large mercantile establishments, experiments made in a number of cities having apparently demonstrated the feasibility of the plan. The system would probably be less expensive than the delivery maintained by the large stores, and it would add to the revenues of the government.

The public will welcome any practical changes which Mr. Hays may make for the improvement of the postal service. The prompt delivery of mail has much to do with the successful management of business of all kinds, and it also has a good effect in maintaining the morale of the people, to whom the government is represented intimately in the postal service.

OBSERVATIONS

All the germ of intolerance wants is to be for alone. It will work like yeast.

The United States is the only nation that got out of the world war all it asked for.

JAPANESE HELLO GIRLS MARRY IN LUCKY YEAR '21

(By Associated Press)

TOIOO, April 15.—Japan's telephone system, which is not considered good, has, to the dismay of the telephone authorities, been suddenly disturbed by the marriage of a large number of telephone girls in the Tokyo exchange. The cause of the sudden weddings really springs from the old Japanese tradition, which in its turn comes from China as so many Japanese things did, and is a result of giving to each year the name of some animal or bird.

The year 1920 was known as the year of the monkey and the monkey year is proverbially regarded by the Japanese as being distinctly unlucky for marriages. One reason for this is that the Japanese word for monkey which is "saru" also signifies "to go away." Therefore, an apprehension has arisen that brides of the monkey year are apt to abandon their husbands. Moreover, the children born of the year's marriage are apt to be too wise, or "monkey-wise," as the Japanese put it. Now this year is the happy and glorious year of the birds. For this is the Japanese word "tori" which also means "to take" or "to gather in." Hence, the telephone girls, like many others of the land, are gathering to themselves husbands.

TURKISH WOMEN BARRED FROM STAGE

(By Associated Press)
 CONSTANTINOPLE, April 15.—The appearance recently of a number of Turkish women on the stage has resulted in an order by the Sheikh-ul-Islam, the religious chief, to the police to forbid women of the Moslem faith from appearing on the boards.

ANNOUNCEMENT CALIFORNIA PETROLEUM AND REFINING COMPANY OF COLUSA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

THE OIL INDUSTRY, this company owns a perpetual lease upon 720 acres, right in the heart of the new oil district in Colusa County California and is now prepared to take subscriptions for treasury stock. The directors of this company a short time ago, authorized the sale of 100,000 shares of the Treasury stock at 25c per share, but since that time the company has practically made arrangements with the California Corporation Commission to sell its stock in that state, and when those arrangements have been completed the company will open an office either in San Francisco or Los Angeles and the price of the stock will be raised to 50c per share.

STATEMENT OF MR. T. J. MEDDOCK

THE CALIFORNIA PETROLEUM AND REFINING COMPANY

Gentlemen:

I take pleasure in sending you a brief statement upon your oil holdings of Colusa Co. California.

First of all, you are centrally located in what is almost certain to be in the near future one of the great oil producing districts of California. Next in line is that most wonderful structure commonly called a "dome" or sign post for geologists. Undoubtedly this dome was forced up by great pressure, for it seemingly has no connection whatever with a glacier slide, considering the distance it lies from the nearest mountains, which is a low range, and practically only foothills.

TO THE PUBLIC

After studying the outlines of this wonderful structure in the picture herewith presented and considering its significance in the oil world you should not fail to grasp the opportunity now available, visit our office now open, and see samples of oil produced in that district. The highest grade lubricating oil yet discovered, and brings the highest price paid for a crude product, also specimens of the formation, an oil shale with all sorts of fossils and shells cemented together. Although the district is quite new there are many drills now at work and many more will be working soon.

The quality of the oil produced in that section is almost without an equal, and according to a cross section map made by the Tuscan Oil Company which is operating in that district, which I have examined thoroughly, and no doubt that company has proven to be correct, by the drillings of their well. I find that the formation and all surface indications are most excellent. After a further and more thorough examination which I will make very soon I will forward to you a full detailed report, and the possibility of your property.

Respectfully
 (Signed) T. J. MEDDOCK,
 Licensed and Authorized Engineer of the State of California.
